Not illustrated. 1901 Excerpt: . . . houses were built of wood, except the gable ends; and these were of yellow Dutch bricks. The houses had many large doors and many small windows; and the year in which the house was built was always put upon the front of it in large iron figures. In these simple days house-cleaning was the test of a good housewife. The front door was ornamented with a huge brass knocker--sometimes in the shape of a dog, or a tiger, or a lion, and this was scrubbed every day till often it was fairly worn out with the scrubbing. The whole house was always being mopped and swept and cleaned; for the Dutch housewife delighted in water. The grand parlor was the sacred place of all. In this room no one but the housewife and her maid were allowed to enter. These two visited it once a week, but only to clean it. They scrubbed the floor and then sprinkled it with fine white sand. Then they placed new branches of evergreen in the fireplace. Then when they had polished the windows and the furniture, they closed the room, locked the door, and left it till the next week. Then they came and cleaned it again. The fireplace in the Dutch living-room was large and generous. The whole family could sit around it. Even the cats and dogs had their corners in the fireplace; and there was room for all. Here the old burgher would sit and smoke...
